Telcos Roll Out Minimum Recharge Plans for Users

FOCUS ON ARPU Airtel & VIL launch sub-₹100 prepaid packs that need to be recharged within 28 days for calls to continue

Kalyan Parbat
@timegroup.com

Kolkata: The good times for marginal consumers of mobile phone services may finally be over. Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea's recent decision to ring in minimum recharge prepaid packs signals their bid to boost average revenue per user (ARPU), focus on profitable customers and weed out those that aren't generating any revenue. Both second-ranked Airtel and market leader Vodafone

Idea have introduced a 28-day validity period on a host of sub-₹100 prepaid packs - such as Rs 35, Rs 65 and Rs 85 - which means consumers who don't recharge on these plans would lose outgoing calls and text messages and incoming in 45 days. Analysts said the move indicates the two big incumbents have finally realised that there's been way too much pricing damage over the past two years since Reliance Jio's disruptive entry, which has taken a toll on their revenue and profitability, and needs urgent correction. "Airtel and VIL seem to be finally saying enough is enough by introducing minimum recharge plans across India to boost ARPU and don't let them to mind losing some free-loaders who were anyway not generating any cash for them," Sanjiv Bhasin, executive vice president, markets & corporate affairs, IIFL told ET.

Both incumbents, he said, appear to be "focusing on the middle and upper-tier customers who don't typically switch operators overnight like the base level value hunters". At press time, Vodafone Idea did not reply to ET's queries. Its pricing aggression since its entry in September 2016 has forced India's older carriers to rethink their pricing strategies, galvanising consumption of voice and data services. Subscribers benefitted but India's older mobile phone companies got hit. Price players who couldn't withstand the fierce price wars exited and the sector consolidated down to three large private players - Vodafone Idea and Bharti Airtel among the older ones and Jio - making it an ideal market situation for pricing power to return over time. Rohan Dhamija, partner and head of India & Middle East at Analysys Mason, however, feels the introduction of minimum recharge plans from VIL and Airtel suggests "tariffs may start edging up by the third/fourth quarters of FY19 itself, culminating in pricing power making a gradual comeback". Last week, Airtel chief executive Gopal Vittal had said the country's second largest telco "expects prepaid ARPU to start improving by the fiscal third quarter onwards on account of the minimum recharge plans, which should also lead to reduction in the company's selling, general & administrative (SGA) expenses. He was speaking on an earnings call following the company's September quarter results. Vittal has said early signals from Tamil Nadu, UP West and Punjab - where the minimum ARPU plans were initially launched - suggested there would be some reduction in Airtel's customer base but an improvement in overall recharge. Such a scenario, he said, would be healthy, as it means "a smaller customer base but a much bigger ARPU".

The US plans to re-impose oil-related sanctions on Iran on November 4 to choke the Islamic Republic's biggest source of income and pressure it to renegotiate a new nuclear deal. Any country or company trading with Iran without US consent after sanctions kick off risks getting cut off from the American financial system. The US has insisted all along that it wanted everyone to bring down oil imports from Iran, but eventually but was open to country-specific waivers that would allow limited imports by those providing significant US jobs and other key economic benefits. India and other key importing countries have been engaged for months with the US for a waiver. "India and the US have broadly agreed on a waiver India will cut imports by about 35% from last year, which is a significant cut," a source said. India had imported about 22 million tonnes of crude oil from Iran in 2017-18 and initially planned to raise that to about 30 million tonnes in 2018-19. But, as a condition of waiver, Indian oil firms will bring down their imports to 14.5 million tonnes, the source said. This would mean US million tonnes a month up to March 2019, the same as companies ordered for October and November, the source said. State oil firms are yet to decide on how this quantum will benefit between them.

US may Grant India Waiver from Iran Sanctions

New Delhi: The United States has broadly agreed to grant India a waiver from Iran sanctions after the Indian side decided to cut oil imports from Tehran by about a third in 2018-19, sources familiar with the matter said, adding that an official announcement could come over the next few days.
